

David Robinson Named Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly Go To Employment Attorney

By RIW on February 25, 2025

Congratulations to RIW shareholder and Chair of the Employment Group, David Robinson, on being named a 2025 Massachusetts Lawyers Weekly Go To Employment Attorney! Go To attorneys are recognized for their expertise, accomplishments, and influence in their field of practice. These lawyers are typically highly experienced, have a proven record of success in cases or transactions, and are trusted by other attorneys who refer clients to them due to their specialized knowledge. They are often well-versed in case law, statutes, and regulations and can offer creative, strategic counsel for complex legal issues. All of the attorneys featured on this year's list were nominated by their colleagues and selected by a panel from Lawyers Weekly.

Dave is a trusted advisor and advocate, representing businesses across industries in employment disputes, discrimination, wage and other employee claims, and more. With extensive experience in state and federal courts, arbitration, and mediation, Dave's clients rely on his strategic counsel and deep expertise. Beyond the courtroom, he helps employers navigate employment policies, wage compliance, discrimination investigations, non-compete agreements, and government audits.

Other attorneys praise Robinson's expertise and commitment to client service, describing him as using a "practical approach" to resolving disputes that help clients avoid the quagmire of litigation. In addition to his employment work, Robinson litigates complex commercial matters, lease disputes, and construction and securities cases for retail businesses, restaurants, manufacturers, service providers, and financial institutions.
