Neil begins the conversation by defining estate planning and explaining why it's essential for all businesses. Then, he explores the differences between a will and a trust, what it means to avoid probate, why setting up a will or trust should be your top priority, and how estate planning informs succession planning. He also uncovers the consequences of not having a will or trust when incapacitated during a sale as a business owner, why many procrastinate on their estate planning, why a healthcare proxy matters, and where spouses fit into the various components of estate planning.
